Siege Armies Before Stalingrad Doomed

REDS CLAIM 12,000 NAZIS ARE TRAPPED

Survivors in the Don-Volga Trap Given Three Days in Russian Communiqué

WITHDRAWAL EXPECTED

BY ROGER GREENE

For the bulk of Adolf Hitler's siege armies before Stalingrad, originally estimated at 220,000 troops, the hours of "defense" were virtually ended.

A victory bulletin from Soviet headquarters declared that only 12,000 Nazi survivors remained in the Don-Volga trap, caught in two tightly-sealed pockets.

"Both of these groups are doomed and their liquidation is only a question of two or three days, the Russian command said.

Subsequently, Red army headquarters announced that the entire German 534th Regiment (perhaps 1,600 troops) in the trap had surrendered and that detachments of the 165th infantry regiment had been wiped out.

Hitler's headquarters reported tersely that "the great winter battle on the eastern (Soviet) front is raging with undiminished force and spreading to new areas."

At the same time, Turkish reports broadcast by the Morocco radio indicated that Hitler was preparing for a sea-borne withdrawal of his Caucasian armies now rapidly being hemmed into a narrow coastal strip below Rostov.

The broadcast said all Axis ships in Turkish and Bulgarian ports had been ordered to proceed to the Caucasian Black Sea port of Novorossiysk.

Capping a week of gloomy broadcasts, the Berlin radio quoted Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi military commentator, as saying that each Axis soldier still trapped at Stalingrad "probably has forfeited his life."

Aside from the virtually final destruction of the Nazi siege armies before Stalingrad, Soviet dispatches reported that the Red army continued their tempestuous offensives on a 450-mile front from Voronezh on the Upper Don river to Armavir in the northwest Caucasus.

The Russians said Hitler's effort to stem the Soviet three-way drive against Rostov, throwing masses of tank-supported reserves into the struggle on the approaches to the key Nazi base.

Red army headquarters said 40,000 of the trapped German forces at Stalingrad had been killed since its leaders refused to surrender on Jan. 10 and said 28,000 had been taken prisoner.

U. S. Aviators Attack Nazi Installations

London, Jan. 27.—(P)—United States heavy bombers, flying Fortresses and Liberators, attacked naval installations in Germany today, it was authoritatively announced.

It was the United States army air force's first attack on the German homeland.

It was believed that German U-boat centers particularly were chosen for the attack.

CONSECRATION DRAWS MANY TO SCRANTON

Scranton, Jan. 27.—(P)—In the cathedral where he was baptized, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Martin J. O'Connor was consecrated as auxiliary bishop of the Scranton diocese of the Roman Catholic church today before an audience that included high government officials and members of the Catholic hierarchy.

Thousands lined the streets around St. Peter's to watch the preliminary procession from the rectory and the University of Scranton. Governor Edward Martin, Postmaster General Frank C. Walker and Chief Justice George W. Maxey of Pennsylvania were among those who had accepted invitations.

Press Demonstrates It Can Keep Secret

Washington, Jan. 27.—(P)—The secret of the Casablanca conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill—hinted at for a fortnight and known by press and radio some 30 hours before being made public—kept so well that many American housewives thought last night's big news was going to be the announcement of a new food rationing program.

Movie-type teasers in newspapers and over the air waves were permitted by the Office of Censorship as soon as the first stories of the conference began moving Monday afternoon for release last night at 10 o'clock. As a result, little box announcements appeared on front pages and radio programs were interspersed with warnings to "tune in at 10 o'clock tonight for news which will affect all Americans—and the whole world."

Local rationing officials said today they had been stormed by phone calls from anxious housewives wondering "what is going to be rationed this time."

Curtin Pleads For Strength In The Pacific

Australian Prime Minister Says Time is Fighting On Side of Japs

TRIUMPH EMPHASIZED

By the Associated Press

Allied warplanes were credited today with inflicting new havoc on Japan's invasion armies in Burma and the South Sea, even as Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia appealed for greater strength in the southwest Pacific "to avenge the men of Corregidor."

Meanwhile, a navy bulletin reported that American reconnaissance planes flying over Japanese-held Wake Island in the mid-Pacific were attacked by enemy aircraft but returned safely to their base.

Two Japanese Zero fighters were believed shot down, the navy said.

The navy also reported that U. S. Flying Fortresses striking at Japanese invaders in the Solomon Islands heavily bombed the enemy airfield on Ballale Island in the Shortland group and started fires.

Voicing his oft-repeated warning that stronger Allied forces were needed to hold Japan in check, Curtin declared:

"Time is fighting on the side of Japan. Time is fighting against the United States."

"The southwest Pacific area is too crucial to be left to a force of caretakers."

Simultaneously, dispatches from the New Guinea battlefield quoted Lieut.-Gen. Robert Eichelberger, commander of American forces in (Turn to Page Nine)

BISHOP MANN DECIDES TO GIVE UP HIS POST

Bishop Mann's action came just 20 years and one day after he came here from Boston and was consecrated bishop.

Quick Defeat of Germany and Italy Believed Allied Plans

BY JOHN NIGHTOWER
Washington, Jan. 27.—(P)—A supreme strategy of victory calling for the defeat of Italy and Germany first and Japan second and providing for a general European offensive as soon as possible after conclusion of the African campaign was believed in authoritative quarters today to have been agreed upon by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

This would amount in effect to an affirmation of plans already in process of execution, it was said, but would mean additionally that the leaders of the two great Allied western powers also had made at

EIGHTH ARMY BATTERS AXIS REARGUARDS

Reports Indicate Montgomery is Stepping Up Pursuit of General Rommel

FRENCH DRIVEN BACK

By ROGER GREENE

Associated Press War Editor

On the North African front, British headquarters announced that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's victorious 8th Army resumed contact yesterday with Axis rearguards west of Zauia, 30 miles beyond fallen Tripoli.

This indicated that Gen. Montgomery was stepping up his pursuit of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's battered Africa Corps, whose main forces had apparently escaped into Tunisia. It was the first time in several days that the British communiqué mentioned "contact" with the retreating Axis.

In Tunisia, tank-led U. S. infantry were reported to have clinched their hold on the strategic Ousseltia valley, 65 miles below Tunis, after capturing a mountain pass commanding the valley plain.

An Allied headquarters spokesman said American troops attacking from the valley cracked through German defenses to capture several places of tactical importance, recovering large sections lost a week ago by the French.

French troops had been driven back several miles by German armored forces 25 miles southwest of Pont Du Fahs.

Rains still hampered large-scale operations.

Other American forces in the region of Maknassy, 35 miles inland from the Gulf of Gabes, poised a threat to the rear of the French-built Mareth line which lies near the Libyan-Tunisian frontier.

Front-line dispatches said the Americans were also in a position to cut off Rommel's "escape corridor" with a thrust to the gulf coast between Sfax and Gabes.

A broadcast by the German-controlled Paris radio said Rommel's legions had already made contact with Col.-Gen. Jürgen von Arnim's Tunisian army behind the Mareth fortifications.

Proposals To Change Relief Raises Issue

Harrisburg, Jan. 27.—(P)—Governor Martin's recommendation that relief be returned to the counties today stirred legislative halls with one big question—how?

Republican leaders of the assembly, quick to approve the governor's suggestion, frankly admitted they had no set plan to carry it out and said one could be drawn up only after long study.

Democratic legislative heads warned they would oppose any such change.

One possible stumbling block in the way of a quick change is the federal government which is contributing $2,000,000 monthly toward the $6,250,000 relief costs.

The contributions are dependent upon federal social security rules calling for civil service in the ad-

170,000 WAR WORKERS NEEDED IN PHILA AREA

Philadelphia, Jan. 27.—(P)—The Philadelphia area will need about 170,000 more war workers during 1943, Louis B. F. Raycroft, regional director of the War Manpower Commission, told the Industrial Relations Association of Philadelphia last night.

Some must come from "less-essential industry" and many women will be needed, "possibly as many as 100,000," he said. "We must almost abandon all expectations of retaining any appreciable number of draft-liable men in industry."

Approval Is Given Flynn's Appointment

Result of Vote in Foreign Relations Committee Is 13 to 10

NOW GOES TO SENATE

Washington, Jan. 27.—(P)—The senate foreign relations committee approved today President Roosevelt's nomination of Edward J. Flynn, former national Democratic chairman, to be minister to Australia and the president's personal representative in the southwest Pacific.

The vote was 13 to 10.

Three Democrats—Senators George (D-Ga.), Van Nuys (D-Ind.) and Gillette (D-Iowa)—joined with the seven Republican members of the committee in voting against confirmation.

Committee endorsement sent the nomination to the senate for consideration next week. The senate's decision on the appointment, which provoked Republican charges that Flynn was unfit for the diplomatic post, was in doubt. There are now 38 Republicans in the senate and they are expected to vote almost solidly against confirmation.

As evidence of some Democratic opposition to the selection of the 51-year old Flynn, long time personal and political friend of Mr. Roosevelt, to the important Australian post, Van Nuys said he cast his "no" vote as a "protest against this growing practice of dumping controversial nominations in the lap of the senate."

PHILADELPHIA FIRE RULED INCENDIARY

Philadelphia, Jan. 27.—(P)—A fire that destroyed the six-story Rittenhouse Hotel Saturday night was of "incendiary origin," Judge Harry S. McDevitt, executive director of the Philadelphia Defense Council, said in a speech last night.

"The implication is that this fire was intended to attract fire fighting apparatus to the degree that harm would have been done in another part of the city because of lack of equipment to fight other fires," McDevitt asserted.

Fire Marshal Alex M. Smith in a preliminary report yesterday attributed the blaze to a careless smoker. All guests escaped unhurt.

Berlin Broadcasts Report of Successes

An earlier broadcast credited submarines with sinking eight ships totaling 52,000 tons in the Arctic, the South Atlantic and off West Africa. Apparently these were included in the larger total.

Harrisburg, Jan. 27.—Governor Martin's cabinet became complete today as John R. Shroyer, secretary of highways, and Samuel Y. Ramage, secretary of public assistance, took over their posts after taking the oath of office.

Both houses held only brief sessions and then adjourned until 9 p. m. Monday. Speaker Ira T. Eiss urged chairmen of house committees to get bills reported out for action, declaring "if we are not working we cannot have a short session."

A small group of state officials and friends of the cabinet members witnessed the oath-taking.

Charles M. Norris, secretary of the commonwealth, administered the oaths in his office. Shroyer, Northumberland county dress manufacturer, was sworn in a few minutes before Ramage, Venango county hotel and oil man. Both new cabinet officers declined to comment.

Results Of Parley To Be Seen Soon, Churchill States

BULLETIN

London, Jan. 27.—(P)—Belief that announcement of a command set-up for the battle of Tunisia would be the first major strategic result of the Casablanca conference to be made public—and in a few days—was widely accepted tonight in informed London quarters. An unofficial American source reported that full agreement on an overall command was reached at the conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in French Morocco. An RAF commentator later said an early announcement was expected on arrangements to coordinate efforts of Allied air forces now hitting Tunisian targets.

By the Associated Press

Casablanca, French Morocco, Jan. 27.—A master war plan for 1943, aimed at forcing the unconditional surrender of Germany, Japan and Italy, has been mapped in a historic 10-day conference among President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and a score of top-flight military and supply leaders, and today the Allied heads had separated to put their global strategy "into active and concerted execution."

President Roosevelt, breaking more traditions, flew 5,000 miles for the meeting that began January 14 and ended last Sunday with a press conference on the sunny lawn of a villa in Casablanca's outskirts near the Atlantic breakers through which American troops stormed ashore last November.

Churchill also flew to the rendezvous which found General Charles de Gaulle, Fighting French leader, and General Henri Giraud, French North African high commissioner, getting together for negotiations to put a French army, navy and air force into the field for powerful blows against the Axis.

Working day and night, the president and prime minister were attended by virtually the entire war staffs of both nations, including all the service heads, and they reached "complete agreement" on their objectives, it was announced.

Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China were kept advised of the progress and results of the conference, which outwitted Nazi spies based in adjacent Spanish Morocco.

The presence of such a galaxy of American and British leaders, both strategists and field commanders, indicated that not only European invasion courses had been charted, but that field commanders had been decided upon for impending operations. Those who will command and where they will strike probably will remain military secrets for some time.

President Roosevelt took time out from the deliberations to award decorations to U. S. troops, ride a jeep to review troops in the field, and eat army rations of ham and beans.

The timing of the meeting was particularly fortunate from an Allied standpoint, with German troops reeling in Soviet Russia and Africa, with Italy having just been stripped of its last symbol of African Empire, and with Japan being smashed in New Guinea.

Here are the highlights of the conference which Roosevelt and Churchill, in a Sunday summary, agreed was unprecedented and will affect the course of the war:

One—Military and civil leaders of both nations agreed on a 1943 plan designed to retain the initiative in every war theater.

Two—Roosevelt and Churchill, perhaps in anticipation of Axis peace feelers, agreed that peace can come only through unconditional surrender.

Germany and Satellites Seek To Discount Confab Results

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press War Editor
While Germany and her satellites sought to discount the importance of the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting—conveniently forgetting that the three earlier meetings of the Allied leaders resulted in momentous developments—United Nations capitals acclaimed it as the prelude to smashing new blows.

Authoritative quarters in Washington expressed belief that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill had agreed on a general European offensive as soon as possible after the conclusion of the African campaign.

Similarly, London quarters declared it was believed that the Roosevelt-Churchill communiqué covered many untold decisions and

Local Women Knitting Much Needed Wear

Officials of Warren Chapter, Bundles for Blue Jackets and Bundles for Britain, have had a splendid response from their workers in the appeal for more completed garments to be sent to headquarters for distribution to the fighting forces.

Knitted garments for service men shipped so far in the month of January have totaled 203, with an additional 181 articles made in the sewing room for allotment to families of service men.

The plea issued some time ago for additional warm articles for American and British service men was answered with completion of 37 sweaters, 11 pairs of gloves, 15 balaclava helmets, 25 pairs of socks, 7 pairs of seaboots, 5 double scarfs, 1 chest protector and 2 afghans.

Families of the men will be aided through gifts of the following sewing room articles: 12 baby jackets, 3 pairs booties, 3 blankets, 70 women's handkerchiefs, 29 men's handkerchiefs, 20 helpless case shirts, 6 sets women's underwear and 37 kit bags.

The chapter here is in receipt of another personal acknowledgement from a British flier, who writes from a Royal Air Force Station:

"A few lines of thanks for the comforts I have just received. They are truly welcome. There is not much more I can say but thanks, America. My friends and I are truly grateful. Good luck to you and let's hope it's all over by the time this reaches you, if it ever does. Yours with best wishes for the future. Cyril A. Cliburn."

Committee to Visit All Farms In This County

The 1943 farm mobilization visit by a community committee to every farmer in the county has two important objectives, according to Mr. W. L. Armitage, chairman of the Warren County War Board of the United States Department of Agriculture. These objectives are to help the farmer meet his share of the county food production goals, and to find out what assistance he may need in turning out the greatest possible amount of farm products.

The committee will be expected to discuss the farmer's operations and under what conditions his production might be increased. The committee is expected to learn the definite labor requirements of the farmer; what his working relationships might be with his county rationing boards, or with the Selective Service Board; and what part he would be interested to take in a local program for the sale, exchange or repair of farm machinery.

On the other hand, the farmer should become acquainted with the extensive programs that are being developed by the Department of Agriculture to overcome farming difficulties caused by the war. However, Mr. Armitage added, continually changing conditions make necessary constant changes in the different programs.

Mr. Armitage expressed concern that the visit should amount to considerably more than a survey, and that the farm plans should be more than collections of figures. The farmer should not consume much time in a discussion of the policies of different government agencies, he said, but should present his farming operations in a manner that the committee will have a true picture of his problems.

Local Man Died While In Jamestown

The sudden death in Jamestown, N. Y., last evening of Samuel Ostergard, 11 Central avenue, came as a great shock to many friends and acquaintances, although he was known to have been afflicted with a heart condition.

Professionally, he was a representative of several well-known steel manufacturers, traveling widely through this section for the Allegheny Ludlum Steel Company, Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and the White Tool and Supply Company. It was his custom to spend Tuesday in Jamestown and he was seeing to business interests there when stricken.

Mr. Ostergard was born in Denmark but had resided in this community practically all of his lifetime. A great lover of the outdoors and ardent sportsman, he was associated with every movement of such nature to improve and benefit the community. Years ago he was one of those instrumental in bringing in shipments of Michigan deer to restock the county, beginning of the present fine herd. Although not a member of any local sportsmen's club, he was affiliated with several outstanding field trial associations.

Surviving are his wife, Margaret, and one daughter, Mrs. J. W. Lutz, of Washington, D. C.; also his mother, Mrs. Marie Ostergard, of Warren, and four brothers: Chris and Peter, of Warren; Martin, of Canton, O., and Arthur, of Erie.

He was a member of the First Methodist church and Dr. Thomas E. Colley will return from Erie to conduct services in his memory at 2:30 p. m. Friday at the Lutz Funeral Home. Burial will be made in the mausoleum in Oak-land cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home at any time.

Double Feature at Library Theatre Today and Thursday
 "About Face"
 William Tracy and Joe Sawyer are back again as Sergeant Doubleday and Sergeant Ames in the new Hal Roach comedy about the service camps, "About Face," today and Thursday at the Library Theatre. They are also continuing the feud they started in "Tanks A Million" and "Hay Foot."

"The Big Street"
 Every element which goes to make up a great picture is combined in RKO Radio's "The Big Street," Damon Runyon's production of his own famous short story, "Little Finks," starring Henry Fonda and Lucille Ball. Silhouetted against the background of typical New York and Florida night spots and resort centers, the film combines a soul-stirring love story, tense drama, sparkling Runyonesque comedy, elaborate sets and tuncful music. In addition, it presents fifty assorted types of Broadway habitués, interpreted by Sam Levene, Barton MacLane, Marion Martin, Eugene Pallette, Vera Gordon, Ray Collins and others. Musical numbers are played by Ozzie Nelson and his band.

With more than four million women entering employment in war industry in 1942, substantial increases are being recorded in the purchases of ordinary life insurance by women as well as in the extension to them of the protection of group insurance.

Three Fascinating Offerings Are in Rehearsal For Dramatic Club's Annual Evening of Plays

Friday evening, February 5, promises to be an entertaining, intriguing and worth while time for those who spend it at the "Evening of Plays" to be presented at 8:15 in the high school auditorium by members of the High School Dramatic Club. The variety, scope, plots are all sure to please. "I Pledge Allegiance" is a timely patriotic play taking place in the Walter home. The really patriotic citizen is like the soldier or sailor, doing his deed without shouting his own praise, and no one is too small or too old to do his bit for his country. Members for the cast are Marcia Baxter, Laverne Peterson, Gloria Genge, Eddie Bell, Leroy Peck, Cynthia Johnson, Betty Rapp and Lorraine Edquist.

"Peace, It's Wonderful" centers around the three-child, one-car family organizing for an evening during the holidays. Just as father is ready for slipped ease he learns they are scheduled to appear at a dinner party while the children are getting ready to appear elsewhere. The Parsons' sitting room looks like a club locker room. This Parson family is composed of Dick Davis, Marion Kridler, Ed Korb, Peggy Hasett, and Allen Laughlin.

A most worthwhile religious fantasy is the play "A Certain Just Man" which is in three short parts. The prologue is before the Gate of Eternity; the play is one hour before the prologue in Josiah Bancroft's office. The epilogue is before the Gate of Eternity. This cast includes the following: Harold Knappenberger, Norman Shoafr, Gloria Hausman, Ed Peterson, Anna Nichols, Gretchen Hillburn, Dorothy Ann Harris, Virginia Frederickson, Melba Olsen, and Anne Harrington.

Special vocal and instrumental music will be furnished by the music department.

There are no reserved seats for this performance and tickets may be purchased at the door or from club members. One-half of the proceeds will be given to some war relief organization.

55th Anniversary Of J. W. Kitchens

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Kitchens, among this community's oldest residents and one of the town's oldest married couples, quietly observed their 55th wedding anniversary on Tuesday at their home, 313 East street.

Long active in the First Presbyterian church and various social and civic organizations, they received a great many cards and greetings, flowers and other remembrances of the occasion.

The Kitchens have one son, Alfred, who resides in Philadelphia and visits them here frequently; also two grandchildren, both in the country's armed forces. William Kitchens is in the navy, stationed in Philadelphia and Paul Kitchens, in the army, is currently in Chicago, Ill.

Social Events

SORORITY PARTY

Sigma Tau Delta Sorority members held a delightful formal initiation dinner in the Germacinos private dining room on Monday evening, with a candlelight service honoring the pledges. The room was attractively decorated in the sorority colors and pledges were presented with corsages.

Afterward, the following officers were elected for the new semester: President, Nancy Christie; vice president, Rhea Schmiedel; secretary, Kae McCune; treasurer, Claire Allen.

REBEKAHS HAVING PUBLIC CARD PARTY

Serving at 1:30 p. m. Friday, the Rebekah Lodge will sponsor a dessert-card party for the public, with prizes for bridge and five hundred and a special award. Amy Swanson and Maude Bright, in charge of arrangements, invite all members and friends.

Lodge members will hold their regular business session at eight o'clock Friday evening.

DORCAS SOCIETY

The Dorcas Missionary Society of Calvary Baptist church will meet in the church at 2:30 Thursday afternoon, entertaining the Lydia Society of Bethlehem Congregational church. Rev. Erik Dahlheim, pastor of that church, will be the guest speaker. All members and friends are invited by the Dorcas president, Mrs. Howard Danielson, who is hostess.

FOR MISS MITCHELL

Miss Letitia Weirich, 105 Prospect street, was hostess last evening to members of the Loyalty Class of Grace Methodist church for a farewell party which honored Miss Dorothy Mitchell, leaving to make her home in Lewistown, N. Y. Miss Mitchell was presented an attractive remembrance from the class.

SECOND AUXILIARY

Second Auxiliary Missionary Society members of the First Presbyterian church will meet at 2:30 p. m. Friday at the home of Mrs. T. L. Armstrong, Fourth avenue. Instead of at the church. All are reminded that this is to be "over-seas hospital" day and that a review will be given of the study book "On This Foundation."

Auxiliary To Sponsor Beauty Contest and Style Exposition

Two nights, February 25 and 26, have been set aside for what promises to be one of the outstanding events of the year, a beauty pageant and style show to be sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

To be held in the high school auditorium, the event is expected to attract upwards of 80 of the fairest in Warren and vicinity, aspirants for the honor of being selected Warren's "Most Beautiful Girl" for 1943.

The contestants will represent local business concerns and will wear formal attire for the beauty pageant. Disinterested judges will select Miss Warren and two attending maids of honor. Details concerning coiffures and wearing apparel to be modeled will be announced at a later date.

In conjunction with this pageant and style show, arrangements are being made for presentation of 15 specialty acts of entertainment, singing, dancing, acrobatic numbers and novelties.

Since this event was first proposed, interest has flared high. Warren has many really beautiful young women and competition will be keen for the title of Miss Warren.

Warren has never had a contest of this magnitude and the outcome is one that will be watched with great interest and enthusiasm by every individual.

Funds derived from the pageant and style show will go to the welfare fund of the Auxiliary, a phase of the organization's activities that covers a wide territory.

More complete information will be forthcoming in these columns at an early date and, in the meantime, the Times-Mirror joins with the masses in asking the question: Who will be Miss Warren?

TIMES TOPICS

IN HOSPITAL

Miss Gustie Willey, 103 Wetmore street, is a patient in the Warren General Hospital, her friends will be interested to learn.

BENEFIT ON THURSDAY

Members of the Russell fire department and auxiliary are hoping for a large turnout for the benefit series of games to be played at eight o'clock Thursday evening in the Clark building. All proceeds from the party will go to a worthy family whose possessions were lost in a recent fire.

CADETS GET ORDERS

Two North Warren young men are in receipt of orders to report to U. S. Naval Air Corps training in the coming week. George Cunningham, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cunningham, will report Tuesday, February 2, at the U. S. Naval Flight Preparatory School, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, at Troy, N. Y., and Bob Washburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Washburn, will report at Buffalo, N. Y., on Friday of this week for assignment.

TO ATTEND MEETING

Several members of the Warren County Supervisors' Association will attend the annual convention of the state supervisors to be held in Erie February 2 and 3. The gathering will be an interesting one and included in the speakers list are Dr. Charles Copeland Smith, of the National Manufacturers Association; William S. Livingston, Jr., Pennsylvania Secretary of Internal Affairs; Walter E. Greenwood, president of the League of Third Class cities; and Joseph R. Thomas, president of the Ohio Association of Township Trustees and Clerks. Discussion of rationing and road building will also be heard along with legislation, finance and other local government problems.

TECHNICIANS ARE NAMED

Technicians have been named by the State Council of Defense at the request of the Third Civilian Defense Region to give advice on air raid preparations, camouflage and air raid shelters. John F. Laboon, of Pittsburgh is head of the group named for Western Pennsylvania. Included on the committees are architects, engineers and contractors. Appointment of men in each community of over 5000 has been asked. The Warren County Council of Defense some time ago appointed Albert E. Kinney, president of the Gamble Construction Company for this place in Warren county.

WILL ATTEND SCHOOL

Fire Chief Douglas G. Kropp has won signal recognition for his ability in fire fighting in being chosen one of six Pennsylvania Fire Chiefs to attend the OGD School at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind. The school will open February 8th, and continue for two weeks. Fire Chiefs from every state in the Union will be in attendance. The Pennsylvania delegation will be headed by Art Espey, of Harrisburg, head of the Pennsylvania Firemen's Schools and five others will compose the party. The school is being conducted under a splendid faculty and the men who attend will return to their own states and in turn act as instructors. The course will consist of fire fighting and the handling of emergency situations in manufacturing plants.

Red Cross Work Notes

There will be Red Cross sewing in Trinity Memorial parish house Thursday, beginning at 10:30 a. m. and with a luncheon served at 12:30 p. m.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all the neighbors, friends and relatives who so graciously gave of their time, for the beautiful floral offerings, and the use of cars at the time of our recent bereavement.

U. S. Marines Set Sail 167 Years Ago On First Overseas "Commando" Raid

Tun Tavern in Philadelphia, first recruiting place of Continental Marines.

ONE hundred and sixty-seven years ago the United States Marines began their first overseas expedition and under command of their leader, Captain Samuel Nicholas, promptly brought it to a successful finish. It was the 1776 version of a commando raid but ended with the bloodless surrender by a small British garrison in the Bahama Islands of a great store of supplies including 71 cannons, 15 mortars and a quantity of gun powder.

The Continental Congress authorized the recruiting of a force of Marines on November 10, 1775 after it became apparent that defensive warfare by the revolting American colonies was not enough. It was decided to form a small well-trained fighting force for foreign landing operations.

The Marines were recruited at the famous Tun's Tavern in Philadelphia during November and December 1775, and Robert Mullian, the doughty innkeeper, was commissioned a Captain and served as recruiting officer, and as Commander of one of the companies. He was both a famous host and an outstanding patriot and the foaming mugs of beer and ale which he dispensed to wash down the bounteous rations of the recruits quickly filled the ranks of the first force of 250 men who were organized and trained so rapidly that they were ready to go by New Year's Day, 1776.

Esek Hopkins, commissioned as the Naval commander, had meanwhile outfitted a squadron of two ships, two brigs, two sloops and two schooners at Philadelphia. The Marines were put aboard and the expedition set forth with secret orders on January 17, 1776.

They were joined by two ships from Baltimore and on March 3rd, eight of the ships arrived at New Providence in the Bahama Islands, fired a few broadsides, loaded all of the marines into the sloop Cabot, and the first commando raid in our history was under way. Captain Nicholas put 220 marines ashore assisted by 50 sailors under Lieutenant Weaver. He offered honorable terms, was invited to a party, and the surrender was accomplished without bloodshed on the following day. The captured guns and stores were loaded, the Governor and a number of other British officials were taken aboard as captives and the raiding force departed for home on March 17th.

Tun's Tavern remained as a patriotic shrine for many years but eventually was razed. A historical tablet marks its location on old Water Street.

There is no exact record of the first Marines' authorized daily rations, though it is believed they included—when obtainable—a pound of beef or three-fourth pound of pork or one pound of salt fish; one pound of bread or flour; vegetables; milk; beer and cider; butter; vinegar and rice or meal. But when they were in Philadelphia doughty old Robert Mullian always saw to it that they had the best of fare that Tun's Tavern could provide them from its bounteous table—and a foamy draught to wash it down.

THE CASABLANCA CONFERENCE

According to Glenn Babb, Associated Press war analyst, the primary significance of the Casablanca meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill is summed up in a phrase of the communique which reports it to the world. It was intended to draw "the utmost advantage from the markedly favorable turn of events at the close of 1942," to catch the rising tide of Allied Victory and good fortune and ride it to full flood.

Therein lies the great difference between this meeting and its three predecessors. The president and the prime minister held their Atlantic Charter conference against the background of vast Russian defeats; Hongkong and Manila fell during Churchill's Washington visit at the end of 1941; the Tobruk disaster and the Rommel threat to Suez coincided with his second journey to the United States last June. But even as the Casablanca deliberations proceeded Tripoli fell, the Italian empire was finished and the task of clearing a continent for the attack on Hitler's Europe was reduced to the dimensions of a local siege operation.

Doubtless the immediate problems of Tunisia and the French generals occupied much of the conference' attention, but the discussions looked far beyond North Africa, both in time and space, achieving accords and plans that could be revealed only in the most general terms.

First and last it was a military conference. The generals and admirals held the center of the stage. The civilians remained in the background. And while Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill, both adept at combining an iron purpose with a diplomat's approach, spent some time on the De Gaulle-Giraud problem, they doubtless made clear to those temperamental warriors their determination that French politics should not interfere with the great objective, complete victory. This was primarily a council of war, to plan the strokes that will crush Hitler.

The announced results of the conference already are being criticized because of the questions left unanswered. No supreme war council for the United Nations was unveiled; the name of the Allied commander in chief for the invasion of Europe was not disclosed. Joseph Stalin and Chiang Kai-Shek were not present, although Stalin was invited.

The Russian leader, it is explained, is too busy with the vast campaign he personally is directing as the Red army's commander in chief. Stalin's chief interest, naturally and properly, is with the immediate job of expelling the Nazis from his motherland; he can hardly be expected to share fully the Anglo-Saxon leaders' concern with more distant lands and times.

The Casablanca communique throws no new light on the burning question of aid to China.

But it should be remembered that the omissions are omissions of revelation, not necessarily of decision or action. There is very explicit assurance that "the entire field of the war was surveyed theater by theater throughout the world." If we are not told of plans for a supreme war council nor introduced to a new Allied generalissimo nor given blue prints of the campaign which will follow Tunisia—or may even be sprung before Tunisia is liquidated—that does not mean that these plans were not made and the instruments and means chosen. Hitler would like to know the answers to these questions, too. We can await the results with more equanimity and confidence in the future than he can.

"Nothing like this prolonged discussion between two Allies has ever taken place before," says the communique. In many respects, indeed, it was unprecedented, in the spectacular journeys of the principals, in the global scope of the planning and perhaps also in the extent of common action agreed upon by two great sovereign powers.

While the full fruits of the conference must be withheld from the United Nations until the time comes to disclose them with shattering force to Hitler and Hirohito, the very nature and setting of the Casablanca conference give firm justification for confidence that Allied leadership is in the hands of bold, far-seeing, vigorous men, civilian and military alike. These days of great opportunity call for great decisions. A policy that measures up to the times of course involves the taking of tremendous risk; overcaution, of which neither Franklin Roosevelt nor Winston Churchill are often accused, might prove disastrous. But neither the American republic nor the British commonwealth, whose combined might will be felt increasingly this year on all the continents and all the seas, was founded by playing it safe.

Washington in Wartime

(Last Of Three Articles On The Pay-As-You-Go Income Tax Plan)

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The objections to the so-called Ruml "pay-as-you-go" income tax plan, now a proposed law in the Capper-Carlson bill, are legitimate.

Rep. Frank Carlson, Kansas Republican, in introducing the bill in the House, recognized them as such.

"I believe," he said, "every legislative proposal must stand on its own merits. So far as I know, no bill has ever been introduced that was perfect. It is only by constructive criticism that we adjust varying viewpoints on legislative proposals."

IN THE first place, putting the country on a pay-as-you-go income tax basis means either writing off 1942 income taxes completely or paying them this year or over a period of years to come. The Capper-Carlson bill proposes writing them off.

Opponents insist that this will mean a loss to the Treasury of the approximate $7,600,000,000 which would have been collected on 1942 incomes. It is true that some day this sum will be lost. Mr. Carlson contends that it will be an appearance only.

The loss will arise this way: If the Capper-Carlson bill is passed as proposed and under the old system you owed $500 for 1942 taxes and you should die the day after the bill became a law, you could owe only on what you had earned in 1942. You would hold true for taxpayers who now owe 1942 taxes who die in 1944, '45, etc. In other words, the Treasury loss will continue as this tax generation dies.

According to the experts, the loss resulting from switching to a pay-as-you-go basis will average $200,000,000 a year for 35 years. Proponents of the Capper-Carlson measure contend that this will be more than offset by additional revenue that will accrue from simplified methods of collection and avoidance of losses resulting from overburdening individuals with staggering tax bills in lean-income years.

ANOTHER objection is administrative difficulties. If a man has to contact his collector of internal revenue every time he changes his income status, there is going to be more work for collectors and their staffs.

A third criticism is the "windfall problem." How about those persons who "cleaned up" in 1942 but are back on the old income routine this year? This has been one of the chief arguments against eliminating the 1942 tax payments. Proponents of the bill say, however, that the whole plan should not be wrecked merely because some few persons may get away with something.

The solution rests with the voters—with the Mr. and Mrs. Smiths that somehow manage to make themselves heard. Best guess now is that the Capper-Carlson bill, in some form, will reach a vote in the wells of the House and Senate. The result is up to you.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There will always be war pictures—and war pictures. Good ones and bad ones. Magnificent things like Noel Coward's "In Which We Serve" and paltry, noisy little things in which conventional movie plots have the gall to weave their time-worn threads through the greatest world tragedy of all times.

I was on a movie set today where they seemed to know that this war, and its heroes, are drama enough. The plot of "Bataan Patrol" can be told in few words: Thirteen of MacArthur's expendables are assigned to fight a delaying action against the Japs in a jungle pass. They are expected to hold the invaders for hours—they hold out for three days, to the last man. That is all.

TAY GARNETT is the director. He thinks he has something here.

"You take a story like this," he says, "and any plotting you try to put into it is just movie. What they did, and how they did it, is story enough. That—and character. How the men react to situations, and to each other, in their tight spot. We've got Lloyd Nolan as a fighter with a grudge against one of the other men, Bob Taylor. That's a sort of side-melodrama. He might be capable of sticking a knife in Bob, but of course he never does. We're sticking to the real menace, the Japs. It'll be dramatic, all right. We don't show the Japs at all until the end, when they've swept over our men's position. The Japs drop bombs from the sky, but we don't show the planes—only our men's reactions. And we're depending a great deal on mood, on lighting and photography, to intensify the menace and suspense."

One of the things most difficult about war pictures, in Garnett's opinion, is to avoid heroics while portraying heroism. "Those boys out there aren't doing any flag-waving," he says. "They're too busy fighting."

THE Bataan set for the film covers a whole stage and has the "feel" of the jungle over it. In a box-hole crouches young actor Bob Walker, his net-covered helmet bobbing down over his eyes as his gun spits fire at the unseen, jungle-hidden enemy. His sand-bagged shelter is beside a still, green pond. Strange bright tropical flowers and vines have survived the battle, but over in a little clearing is a row of new graves—the expendables already gone and buried by the survivors.

You get what Tay Garnett means by mood. You also get an answer to that question sometimes heard: "Why doesn't Hollywood stick to escapist pictures? Why didn't up war, and more war?"

After we've visited Bataan, even in the comfort of a movie house, and have seen re-created even a small part of its valor and sacrifice, that second cup of coffee or that extra gallon of gas doesn't seem so important after all.

Types of Donations Needed In Second Victory Book Drive

Books for the Second Victory Book Campaign have been coming in more slowly to the Warren library than last year. But there has not been a far larger proportion of the types suited to the men's needs and interests. This campaign is fully as important as the last one. The armed forces have expanded so rapidly it has been impossible for officials of our Army, Navy and Marine Corps to supply enough books for all the new camps and receiving stations organized within the year. Thousands of men pour in daily to new and enlarged posts.

But the type of book is being stressed far more than the quantity. This is not part of an early housecleaning project. No clearance of shelves nor cleaning of attics is going to answer this serious need. A plaintive remark after the last campaign was, "We're getting a lot of sentimental novels by early Victorian ladies." Although the officials have indicated general satisfaction with the practical results of the last campaign, certain books were unsuitable, others in such bad physical condition, they had to be discarded and the really desirable materials had not been received in sufficient quantity to be effective.

Specifically the Army and Navy Special Services are asking for the following kinds of books:

(1) The current best sellers (Book of the Month, Literary Guild and other book club selections) and the more recently published (1939 to date), popular fiction and popular non-fiction, in good physical condition.

(2) Adventure and westerns, detective and mystery fiction, in good physical condition. (These are described by camp librarians and others as the type of books most sought, and most read by the men.)

(3) Technical books published since 1935 in the fields of mathematics, machine mechanics and design, electricity, radio, photography, aeronautics, navigation, meteorology, chemistry, physics, shop mechanics, military science, mechanical drawing, architecture, etc.

(4) Funny books—books of jokes, humorous stories, anecdotes, cartoons—and group games in good physical condition.

(5) Pocket Books, and other small sized editions of popular titles.

The local committee is instructed by the V. B. C. Headquarters to reject the following:

(1) Worn or soiled books not in first class condition.

(2) Remove all juvenile books and women's love stories such as Ethel M. Dell, Alice Grant, Rosman, Kathleen Norris, Faith Baldwin, Temple Bailey, etc.

(3) Grade, high school and college texts in general cannot be used. Include only mathematics, modern language books, readers and dictionaries and up to date books published during the last five years especially in physics, chemistry, meteorology, science, etc.

(4) Eliminate all biographies and poetry of little known authors and in general the erudite type of university thesis and research.

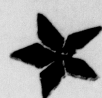

(5) Exclude in general certain authors that were popular thirty, forty and fifty years ago (examples F. Marion Crawford, Archibald Marshall, Bulwer Lytton, etc.) since our earlier efforts have adequately supplied such material.

(6) Discard subversive and propaganda material.

In general, consider the appeal that a given book makes, in terms of a man's interest. If in doubt, ask a man how a book in question appeals to him. Our men are giving us their best. We cannot afford to do anything less than our best for them. Let's give them also along with their "bacon, beans and bullets" good books to make their hours of recreation and relaxation more enjoyable and refreshing.

The campaign will extend officially until March 5th. Collections are more of a problem this time. But the Girl Scouts' Service Bureau has offered its services. If you do not have a way of bringing books to the Warren library, call the library 1085 or the Girl Scouts' Headquarters 1895.

The per family stake in government war financing in this country now amounts to over $800, including $302 in war bonds and baby bonds directly owned, $284 through government bond holdings of the life insurance companies, and around $220 owned indirectly through savings deposits.

Problem of the

WIRE CAGE

BY JOHN DICKSON CARR

YESTERDAY: Hugh Rowland, silently in love with Brenda White, accuses her of planning to marry Frank Dorrance for money. Rowland hates Dorrance and warns Brenda she can never have a happy marriage. Brenda breaks down, admits she is marrying for money and explains her reasons.

Chapter Two

SHE slid off the couch, and walked with quick little steps to one of the windows, where she stood looking out into the fiery garden. A faint noise of thunder stirred to the east, over the heights that swept down to Hampstead Heath. She seemed to want to brush away the subject. But she could not let it alone; she kept nagging at herself and it.

"Well, Aren't you going to say anything? Do you blame me?"

"No. But I still think you're foolish."

"Why?"

Hugh examined his hands, clenching and unclenching the fingers.

"It's like preparing a brief, and trying to get just the right words."

He said, "If your parents were as you describe them, money was es-the thought in Hugh Rowland's mind; hurry, hurry, he'd got to hurry . . .

"It's all arranged—" Brenda began.

"Yes, I know. And Kitty Bancroft will be matron of honor, and Nick will dance the saraband, and Noakes's ghost will bless you, and even I will be an usher."

"Well, what would you suggest that I do about it?"

"You could marry me, for instance," said Hugh.

They had stumbled over it like a hurdle. And Hugh waited, the silk scarf feeling tight and hot round his neck.

"I'm not going to make the usual poor man's complaint," he said. "We should at least have quite enough to live on, if that worries you. And I've been in love with you for four months and eighteen days. I suppose you knew that?"

"Yes, I knew it," said Brenda, without turning round.

"If the jury would like to retire to consider their verdict," said Hugh, while the silk scarf grew hotter, "court can be adjourned until then. If, however, there is any possibility of a verdict being returned without leaving the box—"

"Thanks, Hugh. But I can't do it."

"Well, that's that." In the emo-

YESTERDAY: Hugh finally blurs out his love for Brenda and suddenly, on impulse, takes her in his arms and kisses her. When he glances up he sees Frank Dorrance watching them amusedly through the window.

UNDER one arm Frank carried a racket in its press; in his other hand he swung a small network bag of tennis-balls.

"Bit warm for that sort of thing isn't it, old boy?" he inquired—and whooped with laughter.

Frank Dorrance was young-looking even for his twenty-two years. His fair hair curled closely to his head; he had one of those high-colored, delicate-featured faces which contrive to be handsome without being effeminate.

He was of medium height, slight, and immaculate; his blue-and-white scarf was knotted round his neck and thrust into the opening of a brown sports coat; even his white flannels were of an arrogant fashionableness.

"You find something funny?" Hugh managed to say.

"You, old boy," said Frank critically. "Making such an ass of yourself with old Brenda. I say, you did look silly."

He was, in fact, the only un-most, for he liked Kitty. She was a widow in her early thirties; lively, bustling, sympathetic sort whose manners contrasted with her rather sombre Spanish looks. Kitty almost plunged in through the window.

"Hello, everybody," said Kitty, flashing white teeth. "Frank, you young imp, you went away without that book after all. I expressly put it out on my hall table for you, and you forgot it. Everybody having a good time?"

Frank guffawed again.

"HES a young villain," observed Kitty, covering what she might have felt by looking indulgently at Frank. "Don't pay any attention to him. I'd just bought that book myself, and he begged it off me, and then went away and forgot it. Did you ever? What a glorious tennis weather, anyway! Ready to give us a trouncing, Hugh?"

"Tell me one thing," Hugh said abruptly, and turned to Frank. "Do you always get your own way, whatever you happen to want?"

Frank grinned. "Nearly always."

"As a matter of academic interest, would you mind telling me how?"

"I use my natural charm, old boy. Why should I deny that I have natural charm? I have, and there it is. But I'll tell you. When sential to them. But it isn't essential to you, and you know it."

He glanced up to see Frank Dorrance watching.

"Really?"

"Yes. In fact, the question of money hasn't anything to do with it. You've got some sort of mental kink or obsession by which you've somehow convinced yourself that you've got to marry Frank, and I wish I knew why. Don't you realize that if you marry Frank Dorrance you'll only be marrying another 'Handsome Jack'?"

"Perhaps."

"In other words, you'll be letting yourself in for the sort of thing you hate most?"

"Perhaps."

"Then why in the name of reason are you doing it? You can't do it, Brenda. By God, it's not good enough!"

He got up from the couch, bumping against the table so that the tea-service rattled. She was still standing with her back to him in the window, with the sun on her hair and on her clear-glowing skin. They were coming nearer to approaching the inevitable with every step.

Yet even as his elbow bumped against the table, it occurred to him to wonder why Dr. Nicholas Young had not come in to tea, and why they had been left alone together at a dangerous time. At any moment he expected to see Old Nick come hobbling in, and to hear Nick's only half-joking torrents of abuse at him for trying to upset the matrimonial apple-cart. A true thing, since Frank Dorrance was the apple of Nick's eye. Old Nick liked to have young people about him; he took pride in a house infested with casual visitors and more food on the table than anybody could possibly eat; but you did as he wished or he had a peculiar cruelty reserved for you. Hurry, was tional aftermath, he found himself suddenly angry and as though he had sustained a physical bruise. He had asked for it, he told himself; he had walked up and asked for it, and now he ought to be satisfied when he got the whack. But he could not accept it. "It's just as well to know where we stand, shall I tell you the truth? What worried me was whether in your heart of hearts you weren't in love with Frank after all—"

"Oh, Hugh, don't be such a fool!"

"Am I being a fool? I suppose so. But is it Frank? I was only suggesting an alternative for your approval, in case—"

The width of the room separated them. She turned round, and he saw that her face was flushed. She walked quickly towards him, to get out of the sunlight.

"You are being the most awful fool imaginable," she told him in a low and rapid voice. She stared at the floor; but he felt the anger round her.

How it happened he was never afterwards sure. In one moment she was standing two or three feet away, with the sunlight silhouetting the edges of her hair, and the baffled, insistent set of her shoulders. He saw the expression of her eyes, but he also saw the stubbornness there. A few seconds later (without any apparent interval of time or movement) he was kissing her. Her body was warm; her lips were cool, but violent and responsive.

Again her head was at about the height of his shoulder. And it was perhaps a minute later that he glanced up over it, and saw Frank Dorrance standing in one of the windows, looking at them.

"He's from Scotland Yard," said Brenda.

ruffed person present, swinging the net of tennis-balls over his hand, and swinging it back again idly.

"Oh, I don't mind," he added coolly. "Only—don't let it happen too often, old boy, or I should be compelled to take offence."

And he whooped with laughter again.

Hugh tried to be casual. "We'd better have this out. I've just been asking Brenda—"

"To marry you, yes, I know." "You were listening?"

"Stuff! Why beat about the bush?" asked Frank, unperturbed. "Of course I was taking in what I could. But, you see, you can't have her."

"Why not?"

"Because I want her," said Frank agreeably.

"That seems to you to be a good enough reason, does it?"

"Well, ask old Brenda herself. You popped the question. What did she say?"

"I said no," interposed Brenda, and went across to sit down on the arm of Frank's chair.

INSIDE Hugh crept a small sickish feeling which gradually spread until he wondered whether he could face this out.

"I see," he said. "Right!"—But the emotional temperature of the room went up several degrees.

"Then that's all right," declared Frank, not unkindly. He grew brisk and affable again. "So, while we all know where we stand, let's go down to the court and get in a set before the storm comes on. Brenda and I will play you and Kitty. Sitting up straight, he craned round towards the windows. "It's all right, Kitty. You can come in now."

To Hugh it seemed that half the neighbourhood must have been outside those windows. But he minded Kitty Bancroft less than

I was a kid. I tried my natural charm. If that failed, I used to lie on the floor and kick and yell until I got what I wanted. Now that I'm older the technique is a little different; more subtle, you know; but the principle's the same."

"Didn't you ever get wallowed?"

"Oh, yes. But that only made me worse, so they gave it up—Don't you like the idea?"

"The idea makes me sick."

"Stuff! Why pretend?" grinned Frank. "The fact is, you're not clever enough to manage it. You're one of those people who like a quiet life. You would do nearly anything to avoid trouble and embarrassment. Now, I love trouble and embarrassment. I thrive on 'em. So I can still hold out longer than anybody else, and I still get my own way. Simple, isn't it? As Nick would say—"

His eyes narrowed. "By the way, where is Nick? Why didn't he come down to tea?"

It was Brenda who spoke.

"He couldn't. Frank, a police-officer came to see him, and they're still in Nick's study."

A puff of warmer wind shook the foliage in the garden, making it rustle, and crept in round their ankles. If Hugh had been less preoccupied, he would have noticed the slight raising of Frank's eyebrows.

"A police-officer, old girl?" he repeated. "Oh! About Nick's motor-smash, I suppose?"

"I don't think so."

"Why don't you think so, old girl?"

"Because I saw his card when Maria took it in," answered Brenda. "He's a Superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Department from Scotland Yard."

MENUS OF THE DAY

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Tongue A Variety Meat
Variety meats are not restricted and they are good buys. These meats are inexpensive and very nutritious.

Dinner Menu (Serving 4 Or 5)
Braised Tongue
Buttered Carrots and Turnips
Whole-Wheat Biscuits
Fruit Salad Bowl
Maple Indian Pudding
Cream Tea

Braised Tongue
1 fresh tongue
2 tablespoons teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons parsley
2 cups fat, melted
2 cups stock
2 tablespoons chopped onions
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons paprika
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

Scrub the tongue and tie it into a circle with white cord. Add salt to water and add tongue. Simmer 4 hours. When cool enough to handle discard skin and muscles at the thick end of the tongue. Tie tongue again in a circle and place in baking pan. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons flour and add rest of ingredients. Cover and bake an hour. Uncover and bake 10 minutes. Baste every 15 minutes with drippings left in pan. Remove to serving platter. Discard cord and cut tongue into thin crossway slices (leave it in the round shape on the platter). Fill center with buttered carrots and turnips.

Maple Indian Pudding
1/2 cup cornmeal
1/2 cup raisins, optional
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup maple syrup
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Mix together cornmeal, raisins and 2 1/2 cups milk. Cook in upper part of double boiler, directly over heat for 5 minutes. Stir frequently. Cook covered in double boiler for 15 minutes. (Fill lower part of boiler 1/2 full of hot water). Add butter, eggs, syrup, salt and spices. Beat and pour into buttered, baking dish. Pour rest of milk over top. Bake in pan of hot water 1 1/2 hours in moderate oven. Serve this pudding hot with cream.

The victorious Papuan campaign as declaring that the Allied triumph in that sector was "a slap in the face for the Jap" and the first, pushing-round of this war for the Japanese.

Observers expected that with the end of the Papuan campaign, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's American and Australian forces would next turn their attention to the Japanese strongholds in northeastern New Guinea.

American flying fortresses again blasted at shipping in Rabaul harbor, New Britain, a major base for supplying enemy forces in New Guinea, hitting a ship in the harbor and started fires in the air-drome area.

On the Burma front, RAF planes flying from India again attacked Japanese installations and transports in Burma. Bombing the important enemy airbase at Toun-goo and raking boats on the Chindwin river and along the Bay of Bengal coast.

Results of Parley To Be Seen Soon, Churchill States

onal surrender of the three major Axis partners.

Three—General Giraud and De Gaulle met for the first time under sponsorship of the president and prime minister to negotiate for an effective union of their two forces.

Four—Stalin was kept informed. Churchill and Roosevelt disclosed they had offered to meet the Russian leader—whose armies have dealt such prodigious blows to the Germans—at a point "very much further to the east." But it was pointed out that because of the big Red army winter offensive Stalin was unable to leave the country.

The two Allied leaders were also in communication with Chiang-Kai-Shek and "have appraised him of measures which they are taking to assist him in China's magnificent and unrelenting struggle for the common cause."

Five—Maximum material aid to Russia and China will be one of the prime aims of the U. S. and Britain.

The conferences were held at a small hotel in Casablanca's suburbs under the greatest secrecy. Those participating engaged a cluster of nearby villas for living quarters and the area was guarded heavily by U. S. troops and was surrounded by barbed-wire.

Churchill flew from Britain in an American four-motored Liberator bomber, the same aircraft he used for his August trip to Cairo and Moscow. Capt. William Vanderkloot of Sarasota, Fla., and the same crewmen of the previous flight, again were recruited.

Aside from the fact that he flew across the Atlantic, details of the president's trip still have not been disclosed.

Churchill arrived first. When the president landed he dispatched Harry Hopkins, chairman of the British-American munitions assignment board to Churchill's villa and the prime minister returned with him to begin the talks.

The first one began at 7 p. m. the night of Jan. 14 and lasted until 3 a. m. the next day. Military bigwigs participated, as did the field commanders of both nations charged with smashing the Axis-held strip of Tunisia preparatory to opening a possible second front on the underside of Europe.

President Roosevelt received correspondents in the red-flowered garden of his villa Sunday afternoon while American fighters and RAF Spitfires hummed overhead protectively.

First Roosevelt explained his own and Churchill's regret at the death of one correspondent, Edouard Baudry of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation. Baudry was struck by a machine-gun bullet over Spanish Morocco when the plane in which he was riding with other correspondents en route to the meeting lost its way temporarily. He died when the plane made an emergency landing in French Morocco.

The president then explained the background of the historic meeting. It became clear, he said, when the North African campaign was launched that he and the prime minister would have to meet again.

Stalin had been cordially invited to meet the president and prime minister but was "unable to leave Russia at this time on account of the great offensive which he himself as commander-in-chief is directing."

Then, with Churchill nodding assent, Roosevelt held the 10-day conference had ended in "complete agreement" on 1943 plans to bring about the "unconditional surrender" of the Axis. This did not mean, the president said, the destruction of the populations of Germany, Japan, and Italy, but it did mean the smashing of the philosophy of these countries based on conquest and reign of terror.

No Butter? Here's How Margarine Is Made

Faced with a wartime butter shortage, many American families are turning for the first time to margarine, an economical, vitaminized substitute. Here's how it's made: pure vegetable oils, pasteurized skim milk, salt and vitamin A are mixed and chilled colder than ice to quick-freeze the milk moisture (1). Chilled flakes are squeezed and kneaded to velvet texture in compressor (2) and emerge in ribbon-like bars. These bars of margarine are chopped into one-pound blocks in assembly-line fashion (3) and are wrapped in waxed cartons. Because of tax on colored margarine, product is sold white. Housewife can make it look just like butter by mixing in pure coloring matter (4) then, reshaping it into block.

Giraud Says France Will Be Benefited

France as a republic never will cease to exist and never will.

Their meeting, long considered inevitable but long delayed, was pushed into being by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill as one of the facets of the Allied strategy conference in North Africa.

It was believed here that each group would retain its separate status. De Gaulle to direct the fighting French and preside at the national council, and Giraud to remain at the head of the North African administration. The two generals, it was understood, would exchange ambassadors, with Gen. Georges Catroux, the conqueror of Syria, as De Gaulle's representative.

It was regarded in North Africa as certain that the two generals realize they must reach an accord, that deep down they know they must pull together or fall, that overriding all other considerations is their hope to free France.

Gorfido Boys Serving In U. S. Forces

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gorfido, who reside at 816 West Fifth avenue, are among the several families in Warren county who are entitled to more than one service star in the flag which marks their home as one which is represented among the armed forces of their country.

The Gorfidos have three sons in the service. They have just had word from one, Staff Sgt. James Gorfido, who is attending officers' training school at Fort Benning, Ga., that he is showing improvement and recovering nicely following an attack of pneumonia.

Another son, Pvt. Anthony Gorfido, of the Army Air Corps gunnery school at Las Vegas, Nev., has received his wings and a commission as sergeant.

The third is Pvt. Samuel Gorfido, who left Warren with the last Selective Service contingent and has been assigned to headquarters company of the tank destroyer battalion at Camp Bowie, Texas.

Local Ski Patrol Aids In Recruiting

The National Ski Patrol System, consultant to the War Department on mountain and winter warfare and for the selection of specialized personnel for mountain troops, has been asked to supply 2,000 mountain troop recruits within the next six weeks.

The procedure is simple for any qualified man between the ages of 18 and 38 to choose service with our mountain troops, before his induction and while still free to make his own choice or assignment to the mountain troops upon completion of basic training. This opportunity is open likewise to college men who are unassigned and in the enlisted reserve.

Briefly, men wishing to join the mountain troops should obtain special National Ski Association questionnaires from the local Conewango Ski Patrol, to be filled out. These questionnaires ask mainly for applicants skiing, mountaineering and camping experience. Men who have lived and worked in the mountains and woods; such as climbers, trappers, packers, guides, prospectors, timber cruisers, etc., are preferred; if they ski so much the better. In addition, good skiers without extensive mountaineering experience, if they are physically fit and desirous of rigorous winter and mountain training, will be acceptable.

Applications of men who can show evidence of "exceptional" fitness, even though they have no broad mountain experience, will also be considered by the Ski Patrol System. With the mountain forces the emphasis is on toughness and the ability to "take it."

Upon acceptance by the National Ski Patrol System and the Adjutant General's Office and with a minimum of red tape, for his service is predetermined, the inductee, after passing the regular Army physical examination, is sent at once to the Mountain Training Center at Camp Hale, Colorado, for basic training. Here 9,500 feet up (Hitler's last resort is in the mountains at Berchtesgaden) in the Colorado Rockies insulated barracks await him. Four rope towers and a mile long overhead cable lift hurry his training in an environment and service of his own choosing.

The National Ski Patrol System through the local Conewango Ski Patrol members stands ready to assist any eligible man in joining up for this specialized service. National Ski Patrolmen Kermen E. Forger and John E. Allen are patrol leaders.

Fourteen men from this region have gone into this type of service and two have been graduated from officers' candidate school.

During the past year, the life insurance agents of the country set up war bond purchase plans for 34,000 workers daily, the average daily amount of sales and pledges being $5,500,000.

OPA Give An Idea of What Prices To Pay

There is much consumer complaint that meat prices have advanced and continue to advance. We believe that many butchers are taking advantage of the shortage of meats and realizing that people will pay almost anything under the conditions, are putting on whatever the traffic will bear. It is also true that because all meats were not originally covered and some items not included under ceilings under later dates, that it may not be generally known to butchers that everything they have in their stores except fresh fish is covered by price regulation. We list the names in which all meats are covered.

Beef — The highest price for which these cuts were sold in March, 1942.

Pork — The highest price for which these cuts were sold in March, 1942.

Veal — The highest price for which these cuts were sold in March, 1942.

Offal Meats — The highest price for which these items were sold in March, 1942.

Canned Meats — The highest price for which these items were sold in March, 1942.

Lamb — The highest price for which these items were sold between July 27, 1942 and July 31, 1942.

Poultry — On all grades and types of poultry, new prices became effective January 14, 1943. Definite percentage mark-ups on cost are allowed different classes of retailers.

Lard — Definite percentage mark-ups on cost allowed to different classes of retailers.

Fresh Fish — Is not subject to price ceilings.

be raised by the Warren Zonta Club in its March of Dimes Tag Day on Saturday of this week.

Fifty percent of all funds in each county are returned for local use, the other half going to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, of which Basil O'Connor is president.

Since 1938, the National Foundation has expended $3,015,756 in grants to colleges, universities and medical organizations for research, education and emergency aid during epidemics.

Grants and appropriations during the last fiscal year totaled $1,152,191.17 and the National Foundation's 2,900 chapters operating over the length and breadth of the land gave immediate aid to polio victims regardless of age, color, race or creed.

But this year, the use of President Roosevelt's birthday as the occasion for raising funds to combat the dread, unconquered scourge of childhood holds a special significance: Scientists have hoisted the storm signal of epidemic—inevitable offspring of the mass migrations that have been necessary to put America on an all-out war footing.

The Foundation is preparing for this known date with polio, the Great Crippler, and is determined to be there "fustest with the most-est." A flowing stream of silver and green is the ammunition needed to wage war on poliomyelitis and the Zonta Club is asking every man, woman and child in Warren to buy a tag on Saturday and prove that America believes its dimes and dollars, and not its children, are expendable.

More Dairy Production Is Vital Need

Dairymen are being urged by the Secretary of Agriculture to feed more heavily as one way of reaching the 1943 goal of an increased production amount to 2 per cent more than that of 1942.

The secretary points out that dairymen have done a fine job, "but we're asking for still more milk next year and that milk has to be produced in the face of labor and other problems. We are asking a lot of our dairymen."

Wm. H. Bishop, secretary-treasurer of the Meadville Production Credit Association, says that his association has been financing a rather large number of farmers who borrow to purchase feed, and that his PCA will offer its facilities to a larger number in 1943.

"We are making these facilities available by using community representatives so that farmers will not have to use gasoline and rubber to get to our central office," Mr. Bishop said. "We are financing the purchase not only of concentrates but also hay where purchases are necessary. We also aid farmers to buy cows and heifers," he continues.

"Secretary Wickard has suggested that farmers not only feed heavier but where practical to milk three times a day," said Mr. Bishop. "He realizes the difficulties involved because of the shortage of labor but points out on many farms there is a slack period in the winter and that is a well-established fact that milking three times a day results in the production of more milk."
